

Empty Bowls

Friday, November 22, 5-7 pm | Senior Center, 2037 Douglas St.

You buy a handmade bowl

We feed you Dinner!

Presented by: Pacific University and the Forest Grove Community School

Proceeds go to: HomePlate Youth Services

Supported by: The Elise Elliott Fund

HomePlate Youth is Washington County's only non-profit drop-in center providing street outreach for young people experiencing homelessness

Empty Bowls

Friday, November 22, 5-7 pm | Senior Center, 2037 Douglas St.

You buy a handmade bowl

We feed you Dinner!

Presented by: Pacific University and the Forest Grove Community School

Proceeds go to: HomePlate Youth Services

Supported by: The Elise Elliott Fund

HomePlate Youth is Washington County's only non-profit drop-in center providing street outreach for young people experiencing homelessness

In the 2017-18 school year there were 2,663 K-12 homeless students in Washington county - of those, 552 are unaccompanied youth. On top of these numbers, there are many more youth who are disconnected from schools (and are therefore not counted), have left or graduated school, or are under the radar who also access support at HomePlate.

Research shows a higher rate of success for youth who are able to receive services in their own communities. This prevents youth from exposure to 'street acculturation', prostitution, drug-culture, and other risk factors more prevalent in urban areas. HomePlate strives to serve youth in their own communities, preserving healthy social ties and utilizing existing safety factors like friends, supportive family members, and keeping youth in their own schools.

Want to support HomePlate? Contact...

Kirsten at kirsten@homeplateyouth.org or (971) 322-9381

Want to volunteer for HomePlate? Contact...

Amber Sparks, Volunteer Coordinator, (971) 238-3055 or volunteer@homeplateyouth.org

In the 2017-18 school year there were 2,663 K-12 homeless students in Washington county - of those, 552 are unaccompanied youth. On top of these numbers, there are many more youth who are disconnected from schools (and are therefore not counted), have left or graduated school, or are under the radar who also access support at HomePlate.

Research shows a higher rate of success for youth who are able to receive services in their own communities. This prevents youth from exposure to 'street acculturation', prostitution, drug-culture, and other risk factors more prevalent in urban areas. HomePlate strives to serve youth in their own communities, preserving healthy social ties and utilizing existing safety factors like friends, supportive family members, and keeping youth in their own schools.

Want to support HomePlate? Contact...

Kirsten at kirsten@homeplateyouth.org or (971) 322-9381

Want to volunteer for HomePlate? Contact...

Amber Sparks, Volunteer Coordinator, (971) 238-3055 or volunteer@homeplateyouth.org